THE UNEMPLOYED

And Their Relation to the Proposed Tariff Legislation.

IN FIVE MANUFACTURING CITIES

Alone There, Are Three Hundred and Fifty Thousand Men Out of Employment Owing to the Depression Due to Tariff Uncertainty-A Contrast With Republican Times, When Confidence Prevailed Everywhere.

The following editorial from the New York Press, the editor of which is Robert P. Porter, one of the most distinguished statisticians in the country, as well as one of the ablest economists in the world, contains much to think about at this time:

While William L. Wilson regales the readers of the Sunday Press with solemn free trade platitudes and dilates on the have which the scramble for spoils and the Sherman silver law have played with the country, the tariff which bears his name is bringing the industrial population of our great cities face to face with starvation. Careful estimates made by causable statisticians and pubmade by capable statisticians and pub-lished in yesterday's Sunday Press brings to light the appailing fact that the number out of work in New York is not less than 110,000; in Chicago, over 100,000; in Philadelphia, not less than 90,000; in Boston, probably 40,000; in Cincinnati, over 15,000. Here we have in these five cities at the pres ent moment 360,000 unemployed. These are the great manufacturing cities of the country, and the proposed free trade legislation will strike the severest blows at the industrial populations of such centres of industry. Including the ordinary increase since 1890, the number engaged in the manufacturing industries in these cities should to-day be as follows:

City few York hiladelphia bicage. osten incinnati	Hands Employed, 360,000 360,000 255,000 100,000 95,000	Wages Paid. $250,000,000 150,000,000 130,000,000 60,000,000 45,000,000
Total	1 040 000	SGUS 000 000

The actual figures published by the census for 137 cities give the average amount of yearly earnings per head at $537, so the above estimate is undoubtedly within the mark for the five leading cities. Nearly one-third of the industrial population of these cities is out of work, which means an annual loss of wazes of more than $200,000,000, or a sum of $16,600,000 per month. The unhappy condition existing in these unhappy condition existing in these cities extends, with hardly an exception, throughout the manufacturing regions of the country. The telegraphic columns of the daily newspapers contain accounts of closing mills, operatives thrown out of work and reduction of wages. In some cities in this state and in Pennsylvania and New Ergland the percentage of the unemployed will even exceed 33 per cent. And this is true of the mining districts of the northwest and far western states. Suppose we take the 137 cities for which we have at hand the eleventh census we have at hand the eleventh census we have at man the eleventh census reports. Here are included only places of importance, for there are in all 448 cities in the United States of 8,000 pop-ulation and over. The manufacturing budget of the 137 cities is as follows:
 Total of gross product
 $5,596,406,768

 Value of product, less raw material
 2,006,937,534

 Aggregate capital
 3,588,918,21

 Total wages paid
 1,384,297,81

 Number employed
 2,578,091

During the last decade of Republican rule the number employed and wages paid in these cities increased on the average not less than 50 per cent. Less than a year of the policy of Democratic wreckers threatens to reduce the value of the product one-third, on its attention of the capital stop one-third of of the product one-third, confiscate one-third of the capital, stop one-third of the annual amount disbursed in wages, throw out of employment one-third of those employed, and perhaps still further cut down the wages of those still fortunate enough to obtain employ-ment. These are hard facts to meet. The tinkling of Mr. Wilson's economic cymbals, the shaking of Mr. Springer's continistic castanets and the incessant cymons, the snaking or air. Springer's optimistic castancts and the incessant grinding of Mr. Cummings' Italian organ will not drown the cry for bread and work which comes from a million impoverished wage earners of these cities. It will not beguile the American people while the promoters of this measure of destruction are completing "Wait awhile," says Grover Cleveland, "and see what prosperity we will bring you when free raw material re-duces your wages gets you out of the narrow home market into the bound-less markets of the world." "Be pa-tient," says Mr. Wilson, "until my bill becomes a law, when the increased in-flux of foreign commodities made by foreign labor will in some mysterious foreign labor will in some mysterious way start up the closed mills and factories and bring increased prosperity to the nation." If we could only have got at things sooner," says Mr. Springer, "we would have had business humming now. Pray, don't be in a hurry; the good time is surely coming." "We are waterlogged, boys; perhaps wrecked," says Mr. Cummings, "but if you will only cive us a respite we will wrecked," says Mr. Cummings, "but if you will only give us a respite we will do our best to throw overboard a score or two Jonahs, hunt up a new Moses and lead you out of the wilderness into which our folly has consigned you into the promised land." Thus are the unemployed, the homeless, the starving, met with plausible excuses, ingenious explanations, glowing prophecies, closurer promises and frantic appeals to expinations, glowing profilectes, elo-quent promises and frantic appeals to wait a little longer. Such utterances neither feed the hungry, clothe the naked nor shelter the homeless. They count for little in times like these. When wages were high and work abundant in 1892, the irridescentily, with its glittering reflection on the sil-very and shallow waters of free trade very and snahow waters of free trade oratory, looked tempting. Now, as the victims gasp for life, how different it is! The bait of the world's markets is most-ly shadow, and free raw material at some one cise's expense is, after all, a deep cut in your own wages.

There is but one hope, and that lies in opposition to the consummation of the crime against our industries. Not the opposition of manufacturers. They have grown weary after ten years threatened annihilation. Let a million wage earners from these once prosper-ous centres of industrial activity cipher this problem out for themselves and en this problem out for teneseves and ea-ter a long, loud, ringing and patriotic protest against any tariff legislation. The fact and experience are all on the side of protection, and with such a pro-test even Democratic leaders will not dare complete the industrial carnage.

Misfortune of the Negro that the Sins of the Few Are Visited Upon the Many. WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—Hon. Frederick Douglass, who was the Haitian commissioner at the World's Fair, has returned to his home, Cedar Hill, Anacostia. In a talk with a reporter yes-terday Mr. Douglass would not express an opinion on the Hawaiian question, saying he thought he ought to reserve it until the resolution of Mr. Hoar should find compliance.

"Will Minister Smythe be able to consummate negotiations looking to the acquirement of the Mole St. Nicholas?"

"I am not informed," fie said, "if the government of the United States will endeavor to acquire the Mole St. Nicholas as a coaling or naval station. There is no telling what might be accomplished in that direction in certain contingencies such as revolutions might tingencies such as revolutions might bring about. But I feel quite sure that under the present administration the acquisition of the Mole St. Nicholas is quite impossible."

quite impossible."

Referring to the Haitian exhibit at Chicago, he said: "I express the feeling of the thousands who visited the Haitian pavilion when I say that her participation in the World's Columbian Exposition was highly creditable to that republic. Haiti was a surprise to those who visited her pavilion. The American people had been led to believe that Haiti was barbarous: that she lieve that Haiti was barbarous; that she was descending deeper and deeper into barbarism. When they saw the pic-tures of her towns and cities, the dwelltures of her towns and cities, the dwellings of her people, public buildings, such as the Bank of Port-au-Prince, and the great iron market house, and learned—as they did learn from me—of the additions made to her educational forces, the surprise and admiration increased. I think her exhibits tended very much to raise the estimation in which colored people generally are held." held.

'Did colored people generally attend

the fair?"
"The attendance of colored yeople as spectators of the exposition was creditable both in point of numbers and re-spectatility. They came there orderly, well dressed, and made a good appear-ance. I doubt not that more would have attended had not there been an apparent purpose to exclude them from all honorable participation in the expo-sition itself, and had not the press taken pains in devance to heap ridicule upon their attendance upon their attendance."

When reminded that there was no reference to the negro in the President's message to Congress last Monday Mr. Douglass said that he had not read the message but it is the president of th the message, but if it were so it were probably best for the negro.

"And why should he?" he continued.
"He has had no protest against the lynch law practices now prevailing in the southern states, and likely to become anidemic."

the southern states, and likely to become epidemic."
"Do you think the lynching practices threaten to become epidemic."
"Yes, the tendency is to lawlessness and anarchy in this country. There is fear of irresponsible persons taking the law into their own hands and endeavoring to usurp the places of sheriffs, constables juries indees and determining stables, jurles, judges, and determining the guilt or innocence of men without fair trial.

"The general charges that are made

"The general charges that are made against the negro, in the south especially—the charge of assault upon white women—has affected public opinion unfavorably toward the race. It is the misfortune of the negro that all presumptions are against him, and to be charged with a crime in the south is to be pronounced 'guilty' in advance. Then, too, it is another misfortune to the negro that the sins of the few are visited upon the many. When a white man commits a crime, he alone has to suffer, but the sins of one negro are visited upon all negroes. Thus far I do not see that our colored press has done all it might do to defend the race from this charge. For my own part, I can all times, do to defend the race from this charge. For my own part, I can say that I honestly believe the charge against the southern negroes is, in most cases, trumped up. I shall, however, take it upon myself at an early date to to give my views at length on the sub-ject here in Washington."
